GTC Day 1 Highlights

Inference, infrastructure and a heavy dose of robotics are the key themes this year. Product announcements from the keynote were generally as expected, though the tone around CPUs was more bullish. NVDA updated and extended the backlog slide it showed at GTC last fall, now indicating its prior $500B (excluding Hopper) for C2025+2026 is now $1T+ for C2025-2027. On the basis of our numbers (which are far above Street), this implies C2027 data center revenue that is ~$60B below our model (~$460B vs ~$520B) but we would also note that we are still well w/in lead time so there is more than enough time for new orders to add to this number (and it does not include new products like CPX, LPX/Groq (which NVDA now says could be 25% of the market) or standalone CPU). For example, we think NVDA is going to do ~$40B+ more in revenue this year than this slide last fall would have implied (or nearly 10%). We would also note that because the Street is so far below our numbers, this new slide implies ~7-8% upside to current Street estimates for C2027 data center revenue. Net of everything, we believe this new slide is about in-line to slightly above current investor expectations for C2027.

Keynote

NVDA announced a host of new products while highlighting its co-design expertise and sheer scale of its backlog. Most of the new product announcements were as expected – including the SRAM-based LPU/Groq solution where we believe design-in is underway with several key ODMs for product launch late this year. The demand slide was the most important, with NVDA effectively extending the backlog slide it showed at GTC last fall with a comparable number of $1T (and growing) for C2025-2027. Netting off ~$22B in Hopper revenue for C2025 (the original slide was BW + Rubin), we estimate NVDA's data center revenue was ~$170B in C2025 thus leaving ~$830B for C2026+2027. We currently estimate C2026 data center revenue of ~$370B (Street ~$345B) – which, per our model, leaves ~$460B in data center revenue for C2027. This is ~$60B below our ~$520B estimate but this is only March 2026 and we are still well within lead times for C2027 and the company is again suggesting that this number will continue to grow. For perspective on this, the company's backlog disclosure at GTC in October implied ~$330B in data center revenue for this year and NVDA is actually going to ship (again per our model) at least another ~$40B that has been added within lead time. So, assuming that ample supply chain slack still exists to beat this number, we would read this as generally consistent with our model and supply chain work. Relative to Street numbers, this new slide implies data center revenue of ~$485-490B – or above current Street ~$450B for C2027.

Panels of Interest

We attended a very informative panel w/ Jonathan Ross (Groq's former CEO and Founder) in which he laid out his thesis for ultra-fast inference being effectively a form of intelligence - as in the scenario of a smaller, less optimized model but capable of running much faster which in practice would outperform a larger/more robust model given that users could iterate more, and more times (in use cases such as coding, debugging, etc). In the "Scale out and scale across" session, NVDA highlighted nearly 2x better performance of Spectrum-X for scale across compared to off-the-shelf Ethernet and 5x higher uptime w/Spectrum-X CPO Ethernet vs pluggable, but suggested NVDA will continue using copper where it can. The "Inside the NVDA AI platform and ecosystem" session noted LLMs move to MoE (from dense) requiring faster inter-GPU communication, highlighting the key role of NVlink scale up and Dynamo software for performance and utilization. In the "Humanoid Robotics at Scale" talk, panelists flagged that humanoid robotics are at an inflection point, and have already begun transitioning from just an "R&D experiment" to real deployments (in logistics/ manufacturing with AMZN, BMW, Toyota, etc.); however, the biggest bottleneck today seems to be availability of training data given that teleoperation data (robots performing tasks under human control) is most valuable but scarce, while lower-fidelity sources (human videos, recordings, and web video) are abundant but not as effective. Hon Hai (Foxconn) showcased its AI Factory - a complete engineering stack spanning simulation, data integration, and AI-run operations.

Valuation: PT $245 (unchanged)

Our price target remains at $245 based on a 19x P/E multiple applied to C2027E EPS of $12.68 (unchanged).

GTC Keynote 2026

Jensen Huang, CEO, NVDA

- Product cadence broadly as expected, Groq 3 LPX to work with Rubin rack. NVDA reiterated Vera Rubin system (7 chips and 5 rack systems) launch in 2H:2026, Rubin Ultra and Feynman generations to follow. NVDA presented Rubin-based systems and the SRAM-based Groq LPU (based on Groq Gen3 chip already in production at Samsung), but the keynote was less about individual launches and more about reinforcing how the platform fits together. Feynman generation (slotted for 2028) will also feature 7 new co-designed chips (with new Rosa CPU, BlueField-5, etc.) NVDA highlighted some flexibility from rack design standpoint offering the Oberon NVL72, Oberon ETL256 and Kyber NVL144/NVL1152 racks. Finally, NVDA announced Space-1 Vera Rubin module but highlighted further work required on solving cooling challenges in outer space.

- Systems-level performance discussion. Management again emphasized co-design across compute, networking, memory, storage, cooling, and software, highlighting metrics such as performance per watt and cost per token rather than standalone chip specs. The implication is that NVDA is increasingly directing comparisons toward rack- and factory-level outcomes, where integration across NVLink, CPO networking, Groq offloading portions of the workload, and software orchestration drives differentiation. NVDA software stack from CUDA through Dynamo plays critical role in performance optimization and large existing install base creates a virtuous cycle.

- NVDA updated the backlog slide, now expects $1T+ for C2025-C2027. NVIDIA extended its prior GTC backlog disclosure, now pointing to $1T+ of high-confidence POs through C2025–2027, up from ~$500B previously cited through 2026. Importantly, NVDA clarified that CPX, LPX, standalone CPU as well as its existing RTX enterprise offering are not reflected in the backlog number and should be viewed as incremental, while backlog is focused on Blackwell+Rubin GPUs+networking. Incremental drivers cited included expanding inference demand from frontier model builders alongside a broader customer mix beyond the largest hyperscalers.

- Lead-time dynamics argue against treating the $1T figure as static. Management reiterated that prior backlog disclosures have historically moved higher within lead times as customers scaled deployments post-validation. With system-level improvements such as ~50× performance per watt and ~35× lower cost per token cited for GB300 NVL72 versus H200 NVL8, the implication is that improved economics could continue to pull demand forward.

- UBS model unchanged, with incremental comfort around medium-term visibility. Backing out roughly $22B of Hopper revenue in C2025, we estimate ~ $170B of data center revenue in C2025, leaving ~$830B across C2026–C2027. Against our ~$370B C2026 estimate, this would imply ~$460B for C2027, below our current ~$520B forecast but not inconsistent given the early stage of Rubin-based deployments and ongoing inference ramp. The updated framing implies roughly $485–490B of C2027 data center revenue versus Street consensus closer to ~$450B. Even if broadly aligned with our own supply-chain work, the disclosure continues to support upside versus consensus assumptions.

- CPU commentary was modestly more constructive. NVIDIA highlighted the Vera CPU as part of an integrated platform, with claims around superior performance per watt and a standalone multi-billion-dollar opportunity over time. While GPUs remain the primary value driver, the tone suggests CPUs, networking, and storage are increasingly relevant to overall system monetization.

- Inference and infrastructure continue to anchor the longer-term narrative. The keynote reinforced that the next phase of growth is being framed around inference efficiency, token economics, and infrastructure scaling rather than incremental chip launches alone. In our view, this supports a model where utilization, deployment velocity, and system-level cost reductions are central to sustaining demand through the cycle.

- NVDA announced NeMoClaw - an NVDA security framework that in combination with NVDA's Agent Toolkit and Nemotron open frontier models could offer enterprises ability to safely deploy open source agentic workflows.

Comments from NVDA CFO

Collette Kress, CFO, NVIDIA
Toshiya Hari, VP of IR and Strategic Finance at NVIDIA
Stewart Stecker, Sr Director, Investor Relations

- 1Tn+ 2025-2027 backlog estimate includes Blackwell and Rubin orders for GPUs and networking, but excludes (1) CPX, (2) LPX, (3) standalone CPUs, and (4) NVDA's enterprise data center RTX business — all incremental to the $1Tn+ estimate.
- Despite extended lead times, there is still time for NVDA to continue adding to its C2027 backlog. On supply constraints in particular, NVDA suggested that it has been working closely with suppliers to ensure supply is not a gating factor. To that point, NVDA indicated that any upside revenue is more likely to be constrained by powered shell availability at customers rather than by GPU supply.
- NVDA reiterated Rubin shipments in 2H26. Although volumes might change, NVDA suggested that 2H26 does not mean the end of December.
- NVDA's estimate for the ultra-fast inference market increased from ~10% at CES in January to ~25% now, with additional opportunities unlocked within NVDA's system solution. We understand that by further disaggregating the decode portion of AI inference into (1) attention mechanisms and (2) FFN (feed-forward network) layers, it could use GPUs with HBM for attention/context loading while accelerating the FFN's large matrix multiplications with Groq's SRAM-based solution. NVL and LPX will be connected via Spectrum-X, enabling low latency.
- NVDA suggested that its sovereign deployments today are largely in Europe and Southeast Asia, with the Middle East not yet ramping and therefore representing a future opportunity, although timing may be pushed out given the geopolitical environment.
- On GM, NVDA reiterated its focus on delivering the best cost of compute for customers and expects GM not to expand far beyond 75%. NVDA does not see LPX or standalone CPUs as margin-dilutive product lines.
- NVDA reiterated its NeMoClaw solution as addressing enterprise demand for open-source agentic applications, offering Nemo guardrails and enhanced cybersecurity functions for easier enterprise deployment of open source agentic workflows.

GPU - LPU: Everything You Wanted to Know

Jonathan Ross, Chief Software Architect, NVIDIA
David Senra, Founder, Founders Podcast

- "GPUs as long-haul trucks, LPUs as delivery vans": the panelists' central analogy compared the GPU+LPU platform to a logistics network - with GPUs being long-haul trucks, LPUs as the delivery vans. The key point here being that forcing a single architecture to handle all inference tasks is structurally suboptimal.
- NVLink is central to NVDA's GPU-LPU architecture: it was noted that the hybrid design heavily depends on fast interconnects as each decoder layer can require repeated transfers between GPUs and LPUs; To this end, Mr. Ross noted that NVDA's decision to open NVLink to partners was what initially drew Groq to partner with NVDA (ahead of being brought on as part of the team).
- Latency is the strategic variable: a major theme was that speed is not just a platform improvement but an economic advantage - faster inference means more coding iterations, faster product cycles, better customer responsiveness, and higher revenue potential.
- Throughput/MW: the speakers emphasized tokens/MW as the real optimization target in AI infrastructure, arguing that hybrid GPU-LPU systems improve utilization and can deliver more useful inference output for a given power budget. To this end, "hybrid systems" like NVDA's GPUs-LPUs each excel at different matrix operations while running everything on only one chip type underutilizes hardware. Splitting workloads across both improves utilization, throughput, and latency.
- "Speed is intelligence": in one example, the speaker noted that a smaller, less capable model running much faster can actually outperform a stronger model in practice because it can iterate more times. This is especially useful in debugging and coding workflows.
- Voice and conversational AI use cases: the speakers highlighted voice assistants, call centers, and spoken coding workflows as areas where low latency matters most, because users notice and dislike filler words or pauses used to mask slow response - as it often occurs in today's models.

From Concept to Production: Humanoid Robotics at Scale

Amit Goel, Head of Robotics and Edge Computing Ecosystem, NVIDIA
Ashok Elluswamy, VP, AI Software, Tesla
Arnaud Robert, CEO, Hexagon Robotics
Pras Velagapudi, CTO, Agility
Deepak Pathak, CEO and Co-Founder, Skild AI
Chelsea Finn, Assistant Professor at Stanford University, Co-Founder at Physical Intelligence

- Humanoid robotics transitioning from R&D to real deployments: companies such as Agility Robotics, Tesla, and Hexagon are already piloting humanoids in logistics and manufacturing with partners like Amazon, BMW, Toyota, and others.
- Primary bottleneck is intelligence and data, not hardware: panelists emphasized that the biggest challenge is training models that can reason, adapt, and operate reliably in complex real-world environments rather than designing the mechanical robot itself.
- The "data pyramid": high-quality teleoperation data (robots performing tasks under human control) is most valuable but scarce, while lower fidelity sources (such as videos of humans performing a set action or web videos) are abundant and used to pretrain models before fine-tuning with real robot data.
- Large-scale deployments are a flywheel for robotics AI: similar to autonomous driving, fleet deployments generate operational data that improves models over time, with factories and warehouses becoming key environments for data collection and model refinement.
- Simulation essential but complementary to real-world data: simulation platforms (e.g., NVDA's Isaac Sim) are used for reinforcement learning, testing, and evaluation, while real deployments are required to close the "sim-to-real" gap and validate physics accuracy. In contrast, panelists described how they are currently using high-fidelity digital replicas of factories and workspaces to compare simulated and real outcomes and continuously update models to better match real-world conditions.

Building and Scaling AI Factories With Digital Twins and Robotics

Leo Guo, GM, Hon Hai Technology Group (Foxconn)

- AI Factory requires a full-stack approach: the speaker emphasized that building an AI factory is not about deploying a single AI model but about integrating a complete engineering stack. To this end, the company built a four step architecture for AI factories: (1) Geometry foundation (digital twin creation), (2) Pre-deployment simulation, (3) Enterprise IoT data integration, (4) AI-powered operations enabling optimization across the factory lifecycle.
- Digital twin as the core foundation: the company builds 1:1 factory digital twins using NVIDIA Omniverse, converting engineering assets into standardized 3D models that then allow it to replicate the entire production environment. Specifically, the digital twin enables it to simulate equipment layout, logistics flows, robotics, airflow/thermal dynamics, and production throughput before physical deployment - effectively reducing operational risk.
- Real time operational intelligence builds on IoT: Factory systems (equipment IoT data, programmable logic controller (PLC) controls, etc) feed into a centralized Omniverse-based digital twin, allowing engineers, operators, and customers to monitor factory performance in real time. Similarly, the company showed how AI agents enable autonomous factory operations. Specifically, Hon Hai appeared to integrate AI agents that analyze production data to detect equipment anomalies, diagnose root causes, recommend troubleshooting actions, and optimize scheduling, throughput, and yield metrics - all tasks currently done by a process engineer.

Scaling Out and Across: Networking Innovations for Giga-Scale AI Systems

Gilad Shainer, SVP Networking, NVDA

- AI jitter needs to be addressed on the design level: In distributed AI clusters, one late GPU can leave the rest of the factory waiting. The implication is that effective bandwidth matters less than keeping the system synchronized. Off-the-shelf Ethernet was framed as adequate for single-server traffic, but not for distributed AI where jitter and congestion stall work.
- Spectrum-X is an end-to-end stack: The speakers described networking performance as a property of the switch, SuperNIC, and software working together rather than any one component. That is the same broader co-design argument NVDA is making across the rest of the AI system.
- SuperNIC pushes control to the source: SuperNIC was described as handling packet ordering, ingestion control, and congestion awareness using network telemetry. The key point here being that flow control is moving closer to the server edge to reduce stalls and wasted work.
- Distance compounds latency: Once AI factories are linked over 2km, 10km, or 100km, the challenge becomes avoiding extra delay from buffers, debuffers, and retransmissions. The speakers' point was that customers should pay for physical distance, not an added 2x–3x latency penalty from legacy Ethernet behavior.
- Co-packaged optics improve uptime: The session framed optics as necessary once AI networking moves beyond what copper can support, but argued that pluggables add power and reliability costs. To this end, the speakers cited 5x higher AI uptime moving from pluggables to CPO. On the scale up CPO applications it appears NVDA would like to continue using copper where feasible, but larger size domains, like 1152 would require optics.
- Context storage moves into the pod: On inference, the speakers argued that context memory is becoming part of the pod architecture via BlueField-4 STX rather than sitting outside the system. The stated benefit was 5x higher token throughput and 5x better power efficiency, suggesting that memory movement is now a core inference bottleneck.
- Simulation shortens deployment: DSX Air was presented as a digital twin for network, compute, and storage that lets customers validate the full infrastructure before turning on the physical factory. That matters because the speakers said deployment timelines can shrink from months to about a week.
- Telemetry becomes operations: Multi-rail and multi-plane topology were presented alongside full-stack AIOps as the tools for keeping very large clusters balanced and identifying faults quickly. In other words, at AI-factory scale, software visibility and automated control are becoming as important as the physical network.

Inside the NVDA AI Platform and Ecosystem

Ian Buck, VP Hyperscale and HPC Computing, NVDA

- CUDA-X is the on-ramp to real workloads: Buck's examples in genomics, imaging, and simulation reinforced that NVDA's platform still starts with domain-specific software, not just hardware. The key point here being that CUDA-X remains one of the main ways NVDA expands beyond frontier models into healthcare, science, and industrial compute.
- Scaling laws move beyond pre-training: A major theme was that scaling no longer ends with the initial model build, but now extends into post-training, test-time scaling, and agentic workflows. The implication is that compute demand is broadening rather than normalizing.
- Post-training is becoming as large as pre-training: Buck emphasized that teaching models how to reason and behave can consume GPU resources on a scale similar to the original training run. To this end, the infrastructure opportunity increasingly sits in refinement and reasoning, not just model creation.
- Agentic AI is a token multiplier: The core point was that agents talking to other agents create a new scaling phase because these interactions run faster than humans and generate far more internal compute. In other words, inference demand rises with machine-to-machine reasoning, not just user prompts.
- Thinking models hide more work than they show: Buck highlighted that models like DeepSeek may emit relatively little visible output while generating many internal tokens to check and re-check their answers. The implication is that smarter models can look compact at the interface while creating a much larger backend inference load.
- MoE shifts the bottleneck to communication: A major theme was that mixture-of-experts models reduce active parameters but increase expert-to-expert traffic across GPUs. The key point here being that model intelligence is increasingly gated by interconnect and system design, not just raw chip performance.
- Software keeps making the hardware faster: Buck called out frameworks like SGLang and vLLM as evidence that inference gains are still coming from the software stack, not only from new silicon. That is important because it reinforces NVDA's moat in libraries, runtimes, and platform optimization.
- Token economics replace peak specs: The speakers emphasized that the relevant metric is no longer theoretical peak performance, but how efficiently the platform converts compute into useful reasoning and output. That is consistent with NVDA's broader push to make throughput, utilization, and cost per token the real benchmarks for AI infrastructure.
- Vera Rubin arrives software-ready: Buck closed by emphasizing that PyTorch is already running on Vera Rubin. The implication is that NVDA wants each hardware transition to look like a software-continuous upgrade rather than a disruptive platform reset.

Company Description

NVIDIA Corp. designs and manufactures graphics processing units, add-in boards, and related low-level software. Its Graphics Processing Unit segment includes GeForce for high-end video games and professional graphics workstations; Quadro for designers; DGX and Tesla Accelerator cards for data center and AI scientists; and GRID for cloud-based visual computing users. The Tegra Processors segment provides processors that enable embedded computer vision applications in automotive video surveillance end markets, as well as delivering multimedia experiences on mobile gaming platforms, while consuming minimal power.

Valuation Method and Risk Statement

NVDA: Our price target is based on applying a P/E multiple. NVIDIA company-specific risks include: 1) competition from AMD in graphics processors (GPUs) and professional visualization products, which historically have driven the bulk of the company's gross profit, 2) intense competition in ARM-based applications processors, where rivals seek to leapfrog NVIDIA's early lead in dual-core technology, 3) emerging competition from Intel with its many-integrated core (MIC) processor family vs. the company's professional GPU computing products, where Intel's approach could be more flexible and easier to develop software. In addition, NVIDIA faces the semiconductor sector risk where revenue trends have historically been linked to corporate profitability, which could be challenged for robust growth, as the economic recovery has been more subdued vs. prior deep downturns.

KEY DEFINITIONS:Forecast Stock Return (FSR) is defined as expected percentage price appreciation plus gross dividend yield over the next 12 months. In some cases, this yield may be based on accrued dividends. Market Return Assumption (MRA) is defined as the one-year local market interest rate plus 5% (a proxy for, and not a forecast of, the equity risk premium). Under Review (UR) Stocks may be flagged as UR by the analyst, indicating that the stock's price target and/or rating are subject to possible change in the near term, usually in response to an event that may affect the investment case or valuation. Equity Price Targets have an investment horizon of 12 months.

EXCEPTIONS AND SPECIAL CASES:UK and European Investment Fund ratings and definitions are: Buy: Positive on factors such as structure, management, performance record, discount; Neutral: Neutral on factors such as structure, management, performance record, discount; Sell: Negative on factors such as structure, management, performance record, discount. Core Banding Exceptions (CBE): Exceptions to the standard +/-6% bands may be granted by the Investment Review Consultation (IRC). Factors considered by the IRC include the stock's volatility and the credit spread of the respective company's debt. As a result, stocks deemed to be very high or low risk may be subject to higher or lower bands as they relate to the rating. When such exceptions apply, they will be identified in the Company Disclosures table in the relevant research piece.

UBS Global Research Disclaimer

This document has been prepared by UBS Securities LLC, an affiliate of UBS AG. UBS AG, its subsidiaries, branches and affiliates, including former Credit Suisse AG and its subsidiaries, branches and affiliates are referred to herein as "UBS".

Any opinions expressed in this document may change without notice and are only current as of the date of publication. Different areas, groups, and personnel within UBS may produce and distribute separate research products independently of each other. For example, research publications from UBS CIO are produced by UBS Global Wealth Management. UBS Global Research is produced by UBS Investment Bank. Research methodologies and rating systems of each separate research organization may differ, for example, in terms of investment recommendations, investment horizon, model assumptions, and valuation methods. As a consequence, except for certain economic forecasts (for which UBS CIO and UBS Global Research may collaborate), investment recommendations, ratings, price targets, and valuations provided by each of the separate research organizations may be different, or inconsistent. You should refer to each relevant research product for the details as to their methodologies and rating system. Not all clients may have access to all products from every organization. Each research product is subject to the policies and procedures of the organization that produces it.

This document is provided solely to recipients who are expressly authorized by UBS to receive it. If you are not so authorized you must immediately destroy the document.

UBS Global Research is provided to our clients through UBS Neo, and in certain instances, UBS.com and any other system or distribution method specifically identified in one or more communications distributed through UBS Neo or UBS.com (each a system) as an approved means for distributing UBS Global Research. It may also be made available through third party vendors and distributed by UBS and/or third parties via e-mail or alternative electronic means.

All UBS Global Research is available on UBS Neo. Please contact your UBS sales representative if you wish to discuss your access to UBS Neo. Where UBS Global Research refers to "UBS Evidence Lab Inside" or has made use of data provided by UBS Evidence Lab and you would like to access that data please contact your UBS sales representative. UBS Evidence Lab data is available on UBS Neo. The level and types of services provided by UBS Global Research and UBS Evidence Lab to a client may vary depending upon various factors such as a client's individual preferences as to the frequency and manner of receiving communications, a client's risk profile and investment focus and perspective (e.g., market wide, sector specific, long-term, short-term, etc.), the size and scope of the overall client relationship with UBS Global Research and UBS Evidence Lab and legal and regulatory constraints. UBS HOLT and UBS Pharma Values are offerings of UBS Global Research. HOLT Lens is a corporate performance platform offering that provides an objective accounting-led framework for comparing and valuing companies and is available to clients of UBS Global Research; for further details and pricing please contact your UBS Sales representative. In particular, HOLT has a variety of warranted prices based on the scenario chosen; please mail UBS Securities LLC, 11 Madison Avenue, New York, NY 10010, USA, Attention: Investment Research, if you are interested in the warranted price on a particular company, again subject to commercial considerations. UBS Pharma Values is an analytical tool that involves the creation of a number of individual product net present value calculations, based on published forecasts of sales for pharmaceuticals, and is available to clients of UBS Global Research; for further details and pricing please contact your UBS Sales representative. For all other specific disclaimers, please see https://www.ubs.com/disclosures.

When you receive UBS Global Research through a system, your access and/or use of such UBS Global Research is subject to this UBS Global Research Disclaimer and to the UBS Neo Platform Use Agreement (the "Neo Terms") together with any other relevant terms of use governing the applicable System.

When you receive UBS Global Research via a third party vendor, e-mail or other electronic means, you agree that use shall be subject to this UBS Global Research Disclaimer, the Neo Terms and where applicable the UBS Investment Bank terms of business (https://www.ubs.com/global/en/investment-bank/regulatory.html) and to UBS's Terms of Use/Disclaimer (https://www.ubs.com/global/en/legalinfo2/disclaimer.html). In addition, you consent to UBS processing your personal data and using cookies in accordance with our Privacy Statement (https://www.ubs.com/global/en/legalinfo2/privacy.html) and cookie notice (https://www.ubs.com/global/en/legal/privacy/users.html).

If you receive UBS Global Research, whether through a System or by any other means, you agree that you shall not copy, revise, amend, create a derivative work, provide to any third party, or in any way commercially exploit any UBS research provided via UBS Global Research or otherwise, and that you shall not extract data from any research or estimates provided to you via UBS Global Research or otherwise, without the prior written consent of UBS. You agree not to use UBS Global Research in any artificial intelligence system, without the prior written consent of UBS.

In certain circumstances (including for example, if you are an academic or a member of the media) you may receive UBS Global Research otherwise than in the capacity of a client of UBS and you understand and agree that under these circumstances (i) the UBS Global Research is provided to you for information purposes only; (ii) for the purposes of receiving it you are not intended to be and will not be treated as a "client" of UBS for any legal or regulatory purpose; (iii) the UBS Global Research must not be relied on or acted upon for any purpose; and (iv) such content is subject to the relevant disclaimers that follow.

This document is for distribution only as may be permitted by law. It is not directed to, or intended for distribution to or use by, any person or entity who is a citizen or resident of or located in any locality, state, country or other jurisdiction where such distribution, publication, availability or use would be contrary to law or regulation or would subject UBS to any registration or licensing requirement within such jurisdiction.

This document is a general communication and is educational in nature; it is not an advertisement nor is it a solicitation or an offer to buy or sell any financial instruments or to participate in any particular trading strategy. Nothing in this document constitutes a representation that any investment strategy or recommendation is suitable or appropriate to an investor's individual circumstances or otherwise constitutes a personal recommendation. By providing this document, none of UBS or its representatives has any responsibility or authority to provide or have provided investment advice in a fiduciary capacity or otherwise. Investments involve risks, and investors should exercise prudence and their own judgment in making their investment decisions. None of UBS or its representatives is suggesting that the recipient or any other person take a specific course of action or any action at all. The recipient should carefully read this document in its entirety and not draw inferences or conclusions from the rating alone. By receiving this document, the recipient acknowledges and agrees with the intended purpose described above and further disclaims any expectation or belief that the information constitutes investment advice to the recipient or otherwise purports to meet the investment objectives of the recipient. The financial instruments described in the document may not be eligible for sale in all jurisdictions or to certain categories of investors.

Options, structured derivative products and futures (including OTC derivatives) are not suitable for all investors. Trading in these instruments is considered risky and may be appropriate only for sophisticated investors. Prior to buying or selling an option, and for the complete risks relating to options, you must receive a copy of "The Characteristics and Risks of Standardized Options." You may read the document at https://www.theocc.com/publications/risks/riskchap1.jsp or ask your salesperson for a copy. Various theoretical explanations of the risks associated with these instruments have been published. Supporting documentation for any claims, comparisons, recommendations, statistics or other technical data will be supplied upon request. Past performance is not necessarily indicative of future results. Transaction costs may be significant in option strategies calling for multiple purchases and sales of options, such as spreads and straddles. Because of the importance of tax considerations to many options transactions, the investor considering options should consult with his/her tax advisor as to how taxes affect the outcome of contemplated options transactions.

Mortgage and asset-backed securities may involve a high degree of risk and may be highly volatile in response to fluctuations in interest rates or other market conditions. Foreign currency rates of exchange may adversely affect the value, price or income of any security or related instrument referred to in the document. For investment advice, trade execution or other enquiries, clients should contact their local sales representative.

UBS notes that no globally accepted framework or definition (legal, regulatory or otherwise) currently exists, nor is there a market consensus as to what constitutes an "ESG" (Environmental, Social or Governance) or an equivalent-label, or as to what precise attributes are required for the Information (as defined below) to be defined as ESG or equivalently-labelled. Any information, data or other content including from a third party source contained, referred to herein or used for whatsoever purpose by UBS or a third party ("Information"), in relation to any actual or potential ESG objective, issue or consideration is not intended to be relied upon for ESG classification, regulatory regime or industry initiative purposes ("ESG Regimes"). Nothing in these materials is intended to convey, suggest or indicate that UBS considers or represents any product, service, person or body mentioned in these materials as meeting or qualifying for any ESG classification, labelling or similar standards that may exist under the ESG Regimes. UBS has not conducted any assessment of compliance with ESG Regimes. Parties are reminded to make their own assessments for these purposes.

The value of any investment or income may go down as well as up, and investors may not get back the full (or any) amount invested. Past performance is not necessarily a guide to future performance. Neither UBS nor any of its directors, employees or agents accepts any liability for any loss (including investment loss) or damage arising out of the use of all or any of the Information.

Prior to making any investment or financial decisions, any recipient of this document or the information should take steps to understand the risk and return of the investment and seek individualized advice from his or her personal financial, legal, tax and other professional advisors that takes into account all the particular facts and circumstances of his or her investment objectives.

Any prices stated in this document are for information purposes only and do not represent valuations for individual securities or other financial instruments. There is no representation that any transaction can or could have been effected at those prices, and any prices do not necessarily reflect UBS's internal books and records or theoretical model-based valuations and may be based on certain assumptions. Different assumptions by UBS or any other source may yield substantially different results.

This document is being provided for the exclusive use of YUBO SUI at THE CHINESE UNIVERSITY OF HONG KONG.

No representation or warranty, either expressed or implied, is provided in relation to the accuracy, completeness or reliability of the information contained in any materials to which this document relates (the "Information"), except with respect to Information concerning UBS. The Information is not intended to be a complete statement or summary of the securities, markets or developments referred to in the document. UBS does not undertake to update or keep current the Information. Any statements contained in this report attributed to a third party represent UBS's interpretation of the data, information and/or opinions provided by that third party either publicly or through a subscription service, and such use and interpretation have not been reviewed by the third party. In no circumstances may this document or any of the Information (including any forecast, value, index or other calculated amount ("Values")) be used for any of the following purposes:

(i) valuation or accounting purposes;

(ii) to determine the amounts due or payable, the price or the value of any financial instrument or financial contract; or

(iii) to measure the performance of any financial instrument including, without limitation, for the purpose of tracking the return or performance of any Value or of defining the asset allocation of portfolio or of computing performance fees.

By receiving this document and the Information you will be deemed to represent and warrant to UBS that you will not use this document or any of the Information for any of the above purposes or otherwise rely upon this document or any of the Information.

UBS has policies and procedures, which include, without limitation, independence policies and permanent information barriers, that are intended, and upon which UBS relies, to manage potential conflicts of interest and control the flow of information within divisions of UBS and among its subsidiaries, branches and affiliates. For further information on the ways in which UBS Global Research manages conflicts and maintains independence of its research products, historical performance information and certain additional disclosures concerning UBS Global Research recommendations, please visit https://www.ubs.com/disclosures.

UBS Global Research will initiate, update and cease coverage solely at the discretion of UBS Global Research Management, which will also have sole discretion on the timing and frequency of any published research product. The analysis contained in this document is based on numerous assumptions. All material information in relation to published research reports, such as valuation methodology, risk statements, underlying assumptions (including sensitivity analysis of those assumptions), ratings history etc. as required by the Market Abuse Regulation, can be found on UBS Neo. Different assumptions could result in materially different results.

UBS Global Research may utilise artificial intelligence tools ("AI Tools") in the preparation of this document. Notwithstanding any such use of AI Tools, this document has undergone human review.

The analyst(s) responsible for the preparation of this document may interact with trading desk personnel, sales personnel and other parties for the purpose of gathering, applying and interpreting market information. UBS relies on information barriers to control the flow of information contained in one or more areas within UBS into other areas, units, groups or affiliates of UBS. The compensation of the analyst who prepared this document is determined exclusively by UBS Global Research management and senior management (not including investment banking). Analyst compensation is not based on investment banking revenues; however, compensation may relate to the revenues of UBS and/or its divisions as a whole, of which investment banking, sales and trading are a part, and UBS as a whole.

For financial instruments admitted to trading on an EU regulated market: UBS (excluding UBS Securities LLC) acts as a market maker or liquidity provider (in accordance with the interpretation of these terms under English law or, if not carried out by UBS in the UK the law of the relevant jurisdiction in which UBS determines it carries out the activity) in the financial instruments of the issuer save that where the activity of liquidity provider is carried out in accordance with the definition given to it by the laws and regulations of any other EU jurisdictions, such information is separately disclosed in this document. For financial instruments admitted to trading on a non-EU regulated market: UBS may act as a market maker save that where this activity is carried out in the US in accordance with the definition given to it by the relevant laws and regulations, such activity will be specifically disclosed in this document. UBS may have issued a warrant the value of which is based on one or more of the financial instruments referred to in the document. UBS and its affiliates and employees may have long or short positions, trade as principal and buy and sell in instruments or derivatives identified herein; such transactions or positions may be inconsistent with the opinions expressed in this document.

Within the past 12 months UBS may have received or provided investment services and activities or ancillary services as per MiFID II which may have given rise to a payment or promise of a payment in relation to these services from or to this company.

Please note that all transactions conducted by UBS are consistent with sanctions regulations imposed by Switzerland, the European Union, the United Nations, the United Kingdom and the United States, per UBS' global sanctions policy. UBS opinion as to future investment worthiness assumes no new sanctions are imposed.

US persons are prohibited from purchasing or selling securities of certain companies designated as being associated with the Chinese Military in accordance with the amended US Presidential Executive Order 13959.

In no circumstances may this document or any of the Information (including any forecast, value, index or other calculated amount ("Values")) be used for any of the following purposes: (i) valuation or accounting purposes; (ii) to determine the amounts due or payable, the price or the value of any financial instrument or financial contract; or (iii) to measure the performance of any financial instrument including, without limitation, for the purpose of tracking the return or performance of any Value or of defining the asset allocation of portfolio or of computing performance fees.

By receiving this document and the Information you will be deemed to represent and warrant to UBS that you will not use this document or any of the Information for any of the above purposes or otherwise rely upon this document or any of the Information.

UBS has policies and procedures, which include, without limitation, independence policies and permanent information barriers, that are intended, and upon which UBS relies, to manage potential conflicts of interest and control the flow of information within divisions of UBS (including between Global Wealth Management and UBS Global Research) and among its subsidiaries, branches and affiliates. For further information on the ways in which UBS manages conflicts and maintains independence of its research products, historical performance information and certain additional disclosures concerning UBS research recommendations, please visit https://www.ubs.com/research-methodology.

Research will initiate, update and cease coverage solely at the discretion of research management, which will also have sole discretion on the timing and frequency of any published research product. The analysis contained in this document is based on numerous assumptions. Different assumptions could result in materially different results.

The analyst(s) responsible for the preparation of this document may interact with trading desk personnel, sales personnel and other parties for the purpose of gathering, applying and interpreting market information. UBS relies on information barriers to control the flow of information contained in one or more areas within UBS into other areas, units, groups or affiliates of UBS. The compensation of the analyst who prepared this document is determined exclusively by research management and senior management (not including investment banking). Analyst compensation is not based on investment banking revenues; however, compensation may relate to the revenues of UBS and/or its divisions as a whole, of which investment banking, sales and trading are a part, and UBS's subsidiaries, branches and affiliates as a whole.

For financial instruments admitted to trading on an EU regulated market: UBS AG, its affiliates or subsidiaries (excluding UBS Securities LLC) acts as a market maker or liquidity provider (in accordance with the interpretation of these terms in the UK) in the financial instruments of the issuer save that where the activity of liquidity provider is carried out in accordance with the definition given to it by the laws and regulations of any other EU jurisdictions, such information is separately disclosed in this document. For financial instruments admitted to trading on a non-EU regulated market: UBS may act as a market maker save that where this activity is carried out in the US in accordance with the definition given to it by the relevant laws and regulations, such activity will be specifically disclosed in this document. UBS may have issued a warrant the value of which is based on one or more of the financial instruments referred to in the document. UBS and its affiliates and employees may have long or short positions, trade as principal and buy and sell in instruments or derivatives identified herein; such transactions or positions may be inconsistent with the opinions expressed in this document.

Options and futures are not suitable for all investors, and trading in these instruments is considered risky and may be appropriate only for sophisticated investors. Prior to buying or selling an option, and for the complete risks relating to options, you must receive a copy of "Characteristics and Risks of Standardized Options". You may read the document at https://www.theocc.com/about/publications/character-risks.jsp or ask your financial advisor for a copy.

Investing in structured investments involves significant risks. For a detailed discussion of the risks involved in investing in any particular structured investment, you must read the relevant offering materials for that investment. Structured investments are unsecured obligations of a particular issuer with returns linked to the performance of an underlying asset. Depending on the terms of the investment, investors could lose all or a substantial portion of their investment based on the performance of the underlying asset. Investors could also lose their entire investment if the issuer becomes insolvent. UBS does not guarantee in any way the obligations or the financial condition of any issuer or the accuracy of any financial information provided by any issuer. Structured investments are not traditional investments and investing in a structured investment is not equivalent to investing directly in the underlying asset. Structured investments may have limited or no liquidity, and investors should be prepared to hold their investment to maturity. The return of structured investments may be limited by a maximum gain, participation rate or other feature. Structured investments may include call features and, if a structured investment is called early, investors would not earn any further return and may not be able to reinvest in similar investments with similar terms. Structured investments include costs and fees which are generally embedded in the price of the investment. The tax treatment of a structured investment may be complex and may differ from a direct investment in the underlying asset. UBS and its employees do not provide tax advice. Investors should consult their own tax advisor about their own tax situation before investing in any securities.

Important Information About Sustainable Investing Strategies: Sustainable investing strategies aim to consider and incorporate environmental, social and governance (ESG) factors into investment process and portfolio construction. Strategies across geographies approach ESG analysis and incorporate the findings in a variety of ways. Incorporating ESG factors or Sustainable Investing considerations may inhibit the portfolio manager's ability to participate in certain investment opportunities that otherwise would be consistent with its investment objective and other principal investment strategies. The returns on a portfolio incorporating ESG factors or Sustainable Investing considerations may be lower or higher than portfolios where ESG factors, exclusions, or other sustainability issues are not considered by the portfolio manager, and the investment opportunities available to such portfolios may differ.

Within the past 12 months UBS Switzerland AG, its affiliates or subsidiaries may have received or provided investment services and activities or ancillary services as per MiFID II which may have given rise to a payment or promise of a payment in relation to these services from or to this company.
