Summary

We see F1Q (Apr) revenue in the ~$81B range (suggesting a ~$3B beat vs $78B midpoint) with revenue guidance at least as good as investor bogeys in the ~$90-91B range. We believe Rubin chip/compute board production is on track to start this Q, though some fine tuning on rack-level cooling issues seems to be pushing mass production for racks into the Sept/Oct timeframe. This should not be an issue though because demand for Blackwell remains very strong, so ODMs could extend production into year-end which should easily bridge any 1-2 month timing issues on Rubin racks. A major development to watch this Q is capital return – both share repo and a potential increase in the dividend. We see potential for a new share repo commit that could approach $150B over the next 12mos. Additionally, many investors we speak with are pushing for a much larger dividend commitment - which we think the market would like because it will further broaden the shareholder base. All in, we are adding ~$60B for LPX (Groq3) racks in C2027 which takes revs/EPS to $607B/$14.35 and $710B/$17.07 for F2028/C2027 and F2029/C2028 respectively. For some reason, Street numbers have always lagged reality here quite a bit (Street ~$488B/$11.62 and ~$570B/$13.82 for C2027 and 2028 respectively) but we do hear numbers in same range as ours from some of the more forward-thinking investors. While investor interest here is always obviously high, we sense a marked apathy on this stock even among most big long-onlies – so the set-up for a good set of numbers and potentially positive news on capital return is a good one – especially as NVDA is set to generate ~$190B in FCF this year and ~$320B next year. On our higher numbers, we tweak PT up from $245 to $275 and maintain our Buy.

Modeling details

We are raising our revenue estimates from ~$393B to ~$400B for C2026 and ~$548B to ~$607B in C2027 which assumes ~$375B and ~$578B in Data Center revenues respectively. This assumes ~9.3MM and ~15.4MM compute units and factors in recent momentum in LPX/CPU opportunities. We assume gross margin to remain in the ~75% range at least through C2027 (e.g. the Rubin generation) with out-year margins depending to some degree on whether NVDA opts to offer two SKUs for Rubin Ultra (2 chip and 4 chip versions (the 4 chip version likely using INTC's EMIB-T)). We now model NVDA increasing capital return to ~$141B+ this year from last year's ~$41B meaning that share repo could step up to ~$35B/Q (versus only ~$16B total over the past 2Qs). This would still leave plenty of FCF to continue investing in the ecosystem and "sharing the wealth".

industry-wise CoWoS of 150k wpm with the latest UBS estimate industry CoWoS capacity tracking towards 1.55MM wafers, but we think might see further upside as we move through the year.

- Our latest NVDA production estimates for GPUs is ~8.9MM in C2026 and ~9.8MM in C2027, including CPX chip and excluding CPU and LPU. Together with CPU and LPU we expect ~9.5MM chips in C2026 and ~15.4MM chips in C2027.
- Fundamentally, we viewed NVDA's GTC message on ongoing system-level design supported by further vertical SW integration (through disaggregated inference and orchestration) to suggest that as competitive landscape evolves NVDA continues to offer more system-level value to its customers. Interestingly, we now see other players considering leveraging similar disaggregated inference approach – we think an interesting sign for technology validation (press reports of AWS and Cerebras exploring similar architectures).
- Furthermore, at Mar-26 GTC, NVDA updated and extended the backlog slide it showed at GTC last fall, now indicating its prior $500B (excluding Hopper) for C2025+2026 is now $1T+ for C2025-2027, which was excluding its opportunities in CPU, CPX and LPX.
- We now estimate C2026 product mix at 70% Blackwell Ultra, 22% Rubin (including CPX, LPX), 5% Blackwell and 2% Hopper. For C2027 we model ~68% of revenues from Rubin platform, 23% in Rubin Ultra and 9% in Blackwell.
- During this past earnings cycle we saw C2026E and C2027E US hyperscale capex expectations increased to $812B and $968B from prior $764B and $839B - with MSFT and META capex expectations increasing by ~$40B for C2026, $67B for C2027 and $63B for C2028.

Valuation: PT $275 (from $245)

Our PT walks up from $245 to $275, based on a 19x P/E multiple (unchanged) applied to C2027E EPS of $14.35 (previously at $12.68). Based on the average C2027/C2028 EPS of $15.07 our PT suggests a 17.5x multiple. See Valuation for details.

We note that on the CoWoS estimates basis that include the CoWoS wafers for GPUs, CPUs and CPX chips, but exclude LPX given its SRAM-based architecture - our latest estimates remain in line with implied units from CoWoS estimates.

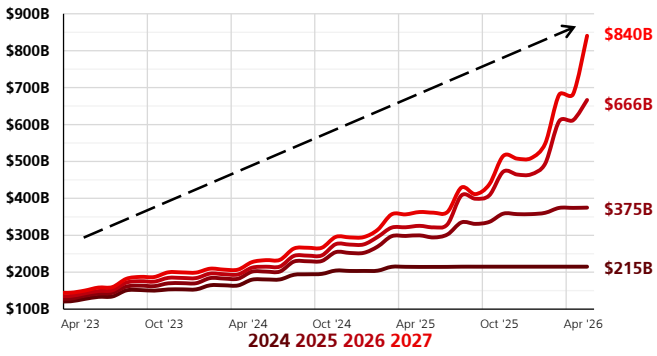

At October GTC Washington event NVDA has more than $500B in cumulative Blackwell +Rubin revenue through C2026. On the chip basis this translates to 10MM chips (2 GPUs per chip). At March GTC NVDA suggested it now has visibility into $1T+ backlog for C2025-C2027 reflecting orders for Blackwell + Rubin and networking components and excluding revenues from LPX racks, CPX racks, and standalone CPUs.

* "GPUs " include adjustment for superchips. For example, GB200/300 and VR200 all have 2 GPUs and 1 CPU and counted as 2 GPUs each in our GPU count. VR300 is expected to have 4 GPUs. "Vera CPUs" number includes both Vera CPUs in superchips and stand alone. "Units (chip, superchip)" count total units sold, representing multi-GPU superchips as 1 unit

GPU/CPUs CoWoS number assumes NVDA's "Other" CoWoS requirement at 20% and LPU does not require CoWoS.

Company Description

NVIDIA Corp. designs and manufactures graphics processing units, add-in boards, and related low-level software. Its Graphics Processing Unit segment includes GeForce for high-end video games and professional graphics workstations; Quadro for designers; DGX and Tesla Accelerator cards for data center and AI scientists; and GRID for cloud-based visual computing users. The Tegra Processors segment provides processors that enable embedded computer vision applications in automotive video surveillance end markets, as well as delivering multimedia experiences on mobile gaming platforms, while consuming minimal power.

Valuation Method and Risk Statement

NVDA: Our price target is based on applying a P/E multiple. NVIDIA company-specific risks include: 1) competition from AMD in graphics processors (GPUs) and professional visualization products, which historically have driven the bulk of the company's gross profit, 2) intense competition in ARM-based applications processors, where rivals seek to leapfrog NVIDIA's early lead in dual-core technology, 3) emerging competition from Intel with its many-integrated core (MIC) processor family vs. the company's professional GPU computing products, where Intel's approach could be more flexible and easier to develop software. In addition, NVIDIA faces the semiconductor sector risk where revenue trends have historically been linked to corporate profitability, which could be challenged for robust growth, as the economic recovery has been more subdued vs. prior deep downturns.

This document is a general communication and is educational in nature; it is not an advertisement nor is it a solicitation or an offer to buy or sell any financial instruments or to participate in any particular trading strategy. Nothing in this document constitutes a representation that any investment strategy or recommendation is suitable or appropriate to an investor's individual circumstances or otherwise constitutes a personal recommendation. By providing this document, none of UBS or its representatives has any responsibility or authority to provide or have provided investment advice in a fiduciary capacity or otherwise. Investments involve risks, and investors should exercise prudence and their own judgment in making their investment decisions. None of UBS or its representatives is suggesting that the recipient or any other person take a specific course of action or any action at all. The recipient should carefully read this document in its entirety and not draw inferences or conclusions from the rating alone. The financial instruments described in the document may not be eligible for sale in all jurisdictions or to certain categories of investors.

Options, structured derivative products and futures (including OTC derivatives) are not suitable for all investors. Trading in these instruments is considered risky and may be appropriate only for sophisticated investors. Prior to buying or selling an option, and for the complete risks relating to options, you must receive a copy of "The Characteristics and Risks of Standardized Options." You may read the document at https://www.theocc.com/publications/risks/riskchap1.jsp or ask your salesperson for a copy. Various theoretical explanations of the risks associated with these instruments have been published. Supporting documentation for any claims, comparisons, recommendations, statistics or other technical data will be supplied upon request. Past performance is not necessarily indicative of future results. Transaction costs may be significant in option strategies calling for multiple purchases and sales of options, such as spreads and straddles. Because of the importance of tax considerations to many options transactions, the investor considering options should consult with his/her tax advisor as to how taxes affect the outcome of contemplated options transactions.

Mortgage and asset-backed securities may involve a high degree of risk and may be highly volatile in response to fluctuations in interest rates or other market conditions. Foreign currency rates of exchange may adversely affect the value, price or income of any security or related instrument referred to in the document. For investment advice, trade execution or other enquiries, clients should contact their local sales representative.

Options and futures are not suitable for all investors, and trading in these instruments is considered risky and may be appropriate only for sophisticated investors. Prior to buying or selling an option, and for the complete risks relating to options, you must receive a copy of "Characteristics and Risks of Standardized Options". Investing in structured investments involves significant risks. For a detailed discussion of the risks involved in investing in any particular structured investment, you must read the relevant offering materials for that investment. Structured investments are unsecured obligations of a particular issuer with returns linked to the performance of an underlying asset. Depending on the terms of the investment, investors could lose all or a substantial portion of their investment based on the performance of the underlying asset. Investors could also lose their entire investment if the issuer becomes insolvent. UBS does not guarantee in any way the obligations or the financial condition of any issuer or the accuracy of any financial information provided by any issuer. Structured investments are not traditional investments and investing in a structured investment is not equivalent to investing directly in the underlying asset. Structured investments may have limited or no liquidity, and investors should be prepared to hold their investment to maturity. The return of structured investments may be limited by a maximum gain, participation rate or other feature. Structured investments may include call features and, if a structured investment is called early, investors would not earn any further return and may not be able to reinvest in similar investments with similar terms. Structured investments include costs and fees which are generally embedded in the price of the investment. The tax treatment of a structured investment may be complex and may differ from a direct investment in the underlying asset. UBS and its employees do not provide tax advice. Investors should consult their own tax advisor about their own tax situation before investing in any securities.

Important Information About Sustainable Investing Strategies: Sustainable investing strategies aim to consider and incorporate environmental, social and governance (ESG) factors into investment process and portfolio construction. Strategies across geographies approach ESG analysis and incorporate the findings in a variety of ways. Incorporating ESG factors or Sustainable Investing considerations may inhibit the portfolio manager's ability to participate in certain investment opportunities that otherwise would be consistent with its investment objective and other principal investment strategies. The returns on a portfolio incorporating ESG factors or Sustainable Investing considerations may be lower or higher than portfolios where ESG factors, exclusions, or other sustainability issues are not considered by the portfolio manager, and the investment opportunities available to such portfolios may differ.
