Raimo's Roundup: Is An AI Impact On Gross Margins Already Visible

One of the implications of greater AI momentum in software is greater token consumption and hence a headwind for gross margin (GM). Looking at the past 3 years, we can see a small negative impact, which is good (AI adoption could be real) and bad (potentially more margin pressure).

What Happened?

Microsoft announced updated FY27 reporting segmentation, transitioning from the current three reporting segments to two segments (Agent and Infra, and Devices and Consumer), with some updated classification on sub-segments including Azure and Microsoft 365 Cloud.

We attended the JFrog swampUP 2026 conference, where mgmt reiterated confidence in its long-term targets as it positions itself as the trusted governance and security layer for AI-driven software development (see note here).

Similarweb and NIQ announced a partnership to enhance NIQ's Agentic Commerce Measurement strategy, combining a seven-to-eight-figure commitment with LT upside through revenue sharing (see note here).

Descartes announced the acquisition of Extensiv, a provider of warehouse management and fulfillment solutions for third-party logistics (3PL) providers.

On Tuesday, GitLab delivered a better-than-expected Q2, with stabilization in SMB and mid-market, a rebound in Public Sector, and stronger-than-anticipated expansion activity across the business (including net-new customer acquisition improving materially) (see note here). MongoDB reported solid 2Q27 results with total revenue growth reaccelerating to >30% for the first time in ~3 years, though this was largely driven by EA while healthy Atlas growth of ~29% y/y decelerated slightly and seemed to come in below elevated buy-side expectations (see note here).

On Wednesday, Sprinklr reported a mixed Q2 with mgmt emphasizing continued execution progress and customer engagement, though the decelerating subscription growth and weaker short-term bookings suggest investors may need patience before a meaningful growth inflection (see note here). Snowflake reported strong 2Q27 results with another quarter of record net new product revenue and raised FY27 revenue guidance well above the Q2 print, with Q3 product revenue guidance implying further acceleration to ~37-37.5% y/y growth (see note here).

Barclays Capital Inc. and/or one of its affiliates does and seeks to do business with companies covered in its research reports. As a result, investors should be aware that the firm may have a conflict of interest that could affect the objectivity of this report. Investors should consider this report as only a single factor in making their investment decision.

On Thursday, UiPath reported better than expected Q2 results highlighted by a slight ARR acceleration and raised FY27 top-line guidance slightly above the Q2 beat.

Palo Alto Networks beat 4Q NGS net new ARR both organically and inorganically and guided to flattish organic NGS NNARR in FY27 by our estimates, which we think is beatable.

CrowdStrike pulled forward its $10B ARR target and guided FY28 NNARR growth of 20%+ and FCF margins of 32.5%+.

We previewed Adobe's 3Q and could see a $420M+ upside case in NNARR based on solid web traffic, but 4Q has a tough ramp.

We previewed SailPoint's 2Q, and we are modeling ~$57M in NNARR and could see an upside scenario of ~$62M.

What's Next?

Next Tuesday, September 8th, Braze will report earnings after the close.

Next Wednesday, September 9th, SailPoint will report earnings before the open. We will also attend Klaviyo's customer conference and analyst meeting in Boston.

Next Thursday, September 10th, We will be attending Omada's Analyst Day in New York City. Oracle, Descartes and Adobe will report earnings after the close.

Next Friday, September 11th, at 10am ET, software analysts Raimo Lenschow and Saket Kalia are hosting their biweekly software investor call (link).

Looking At Gross Margin In Software To Check AI Impact

The simple bear theme in software is that AI will negatively impact the space and there is very little hope. We are not sure that is the case, see our take here. However, what investors need to be aware of is that software will change. With the incorporation of more AI tools there will be a new headwind on gross margin as software vendors need to incorporate the token usage in their model. This is a much more valid concern but the key question here is magnitude of the impact. In the graph below we are looking at the evolution of gross margins in our space. We can see that there is a small negative impact, which makes sense. Interestingly, we would almost see this as a positive signal. AI tokens, especially with the use of smaller and more open-source LLMs, will unlikely destroy the gross margin structure of our vendors. The graph below confirms this so far. The fact that margins are declining also could point to the fact that more AI activity is becoming visible.

Source: Bloomberg, Barclays Research

However, we need to be a little careful as every company has a slightly different story and there could be different triggers. For example, we can see in the table below, which shows the individual names, that IBM's gross margins actually are improving. This is due to the greater software mix. Similarly, Five9 has a positive mix effect of more cloud revenue and lower carrier revenue.

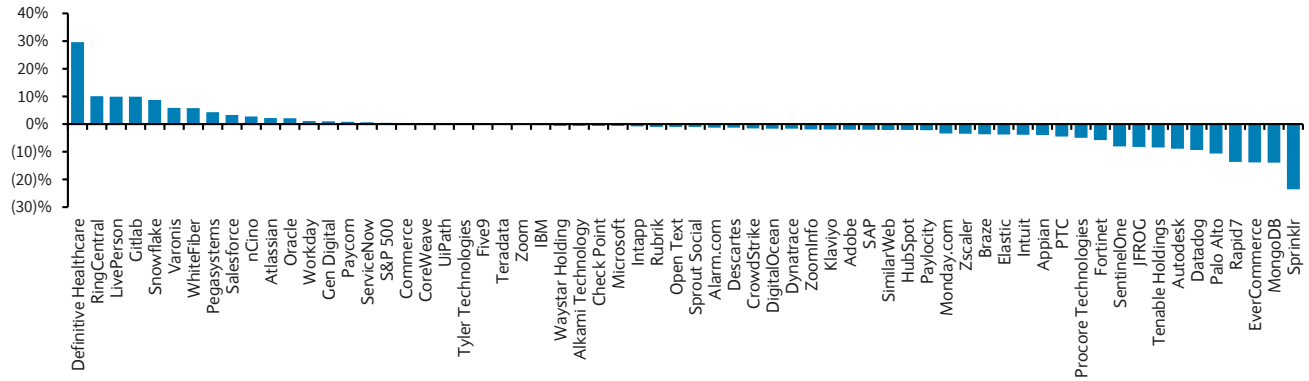

On the other side of the spectrum we can see the gross margin pressure for Microsoft, Oracle and DOCN due to the greater AI datacenter investments. However, we can also see the gross margin headwinds for the main SaaS names like CRM, NOW or WDAY. If there would be no AI, it would be unlikely to see these changes, which to us is actually a positive signal.

What Happened?

Similarweb Ltd.; NIQ Partnership Highlights New AI-Driven Market Research Growth Vertical

The NIQ announcement combines a seven-to-eight-figure commitment with LT upside through revenue sharing. The partnership highlights a broader change that AI is increasing the value of digital intelligence data (making market research firms a growing oppty, similar to recent LLM deals). NIQ relationship combines a large net new deal with potentially significant LT upside through revenue sharing. While the press release focused on NIQ's agentic commerce initiative, SMWB emphasized that the relationship is much more than that. The NIQ and Similarweb agreement includes a fixed annual commitment (seven-to-eight-figures that will benefit some of Q3 and a full quarter in Q4) alongside a revenue-share component tied to the success of NIQ's offering, creating a partnership that allows SMWB to participate in future growth. Mgmt noted that the revenue-share opportunity is not expected to be a significant near-term contributor given the limited initial rollout. Over time, SMWB suggested the revenue-share opportunity alone could potentially be worth several millions annually if NIQ successfully scales its product.

Snowflake Computing: 2Q27 Recap: AI-Driven Acceleration Continues and So Can Improving Sentiment

We see shares moving higher post Q2. Another record product revenue add drove a 3pt acceleration and 5% beat that was above the more bullish buy-side expectations we were hearing. With Q3 implying a further acceleration and profits moving higher, we can see the positive sentiment gains continuing. Following strong Q1 results and the subsequent share outperformance (SNOW +74% since earnings on 5/27 vs. IGV -1%), there was some nervousness around whether investor expectations were getting too high into the print. Another quarter of record net new product revenue ($158mn) and ~3pt acceleration (to ~37% y/y), driven by a balance between growing AI usage and stronger core consumption growth, validated the positive investor sentiment. Profitability was also a highlight outside of gross margins (from lower AI margin mix effect) but SNOW is more than making up for this with OpEx efficiencies. Importantly, the Snowflake AI story is clearly progressing as AI is driving multiple positive effects across the revenue model with its ability to shorten customer data migrations, increase consumption through ease of use, introduce new use cases, and accelerate top-of-funnel GTM efforts.

JFrog Ltd: 2026 swampUP Conference Takeaways

While not updating its 2027 targets, mgmt reiterated confidence in its ability to achieve the current model. We continue to believe that FROG's product portfolio is only growing in value as agentic use cases become more prevalent across the SDLC. The overarching theme from swampUP 2026 was that every AI-driven security, governance, and automation use case ultimately depends on a trusted system of record. FROG outlined three key pillars to assist in the evolving world of agentic use cases: Immunize, Heal, and Govern. These three themes rely on maintaining visibility into software artifacts, dependencies, and compliance. As the SDLC becomes autonomous, FROG believes manual oversight will no longer be able to scale. Anthropic, who gave a presentation at the end of the keynote, repeatedly noted the need for trusted context, historical records, and governance. FROG continues to position its product roadmap and investments in evolving its positioning from an artifact repository vendor into the trust layer underneath the AI software supply chain.

Sprinklr, Inc.: 2Q27 Recap: Improving Groundwork, Though Patience Needed Before Seeing an Inflection

Q2 results reflected that CXM is still in transition, with mgmt pointing to improving customer engagement and pipeline quality. However, forward-looking indicators including cRPO growth and bookings remain relatively subdued, suggesting patience is needed before a meaningful growth inflection. CXM reported a mixed Q2, with mgmt emphasizing continued execution progress, although the evidence of broader growth inflection remains limited. Revenue came in modestly below consensus expectations at 0.8% y/y, primarily due to weaker Professional Services performance in the quarter, while adj. operating profit margin of 14.6% exceeded expectations. Mgmt sounded positive on improving pipeline quality, stronger renewal trends, and healthy enterprise demand. However, subscription revenue growth decelerated to 3.4% y/y vs. 5.8% in Q1, cRPO growth decelerated y/y and was negative on a q/q basis, and short-term bookings largely weakened during the quarter, all pointing to the ongoing pressure on expansion activities.

Braze Inc.: 2Q27 Preview: Expecting Stable Q2 Execution With Potential 2H Organic Reacceleration Driven by Decisioning Studio

We are expecting BRZE to deliver a solid Q2 with potential upside from Decisioning Studio growth and enterprise adoption of AI-driven decisioning use cases. Beyond Q2, we see an opportunity for an organic reaccel in Q3, supported by Decisioning Studio and healthy 2H pipeline activity. We expect Braze to deliver another solid quarter, with relatively stable underlying organic growth trends and a Q3 rev. guide slightly above Street expectations ($228mn), supported by continued enterprise demand and improving execution. On a reported basis, we expect rev. growth to naturally decelerate due to a tougher acquisition-related comparison from OfferFit's ~$2.8mn contribution in 2Q26 (acquisition closed on June 2nd, 2025). While management is unlikely to fully embed this into its initial guidance framework, we see a path toward organic reacceleration in Q3 as Decisioning Studio deployment capacity expands through additional forward-deployed delivery hiring and as enterprises become more comfortable adopting AI-driven decisioning use cases.

MongoDB, Inc.: 2Q27 Recap: High Atlas Expectations Could Muddy ST Reaction but AI Tailwinds Coming into View Support Bull Case

MDB saw continued strength in Q2 but with EA driving the bulk of the beat and Atlas growth decelerating slightly. This mix dynamic could lead to some ST pressure given high Atlas expectations. However, it seems AI tailwinds are only starting to play out and hence, the LT growth story is well intact. There was a lot to like in MongoDB's strong 2Q27 results including the first quarter of +30% total revenue growth in three years, healthy profitability upside and raised FY guidance above the Q2 beat level. However, as discussed during our preview, the set-up was always challenging given high expectations for Atlas following the recent share outperformance (MDB +29% last month vs. IGV +12%) and given a tougher Atlas growth comp. True, Atlas growth did decelerate slightly and this helps solidify that MDB is indeed going to see material AI tailwinds later than infrastructure peers (DDOG, SNOW). From this perspective, against high expectations, we could see some ST pressure on shares. We argue this is more timing and expectations as mgmt reiterated on the call that EA strength is not coming at the expense of Atlas growth.

GitLab Inc.: 2Q27 Recap: Broad-Based Improvement

GTLB's Q2 results reflect some of its past investments in sales enablement and first order expansion starting to drive momentum. We view these results (on top of FROG / TEAM's earnings) as another positive read-through on the developer ecosystem. GTLB delivered a much stronger-than-expected Q2, with broad-based improvement across several areas that had been concerns for investors over the last year. Performance in both SMB (8% of ARR) and mid-market stabilized, with mgmt noting stronger expansion activity and improved first-order trends, while Public Sector (12% of ARR) also rebounded meaningfully after several quarters of disruption related to government shutdowns and budget uncertainty. However, perhaps the most important part of the quarter was the renewed emphasis on net-new customer strength as first-order count more than doubled y/y and customer acquisition significantly exceeded expectations despite a competitive environment. Mgmt also highlighted strong early adoption of Flex, which it believes will eventually become the default purchasing model for customers by making it easier to consume both seat-based and consumption-based products across the platform.

U.S. Software: rAImo's AI Newsletter #125: Unpacking NVIDIA Earnings Readthroughs and Recent Developments

This week, we unpack the NVIDIA earnings readthroughs to the broader software space and discuss subsequent NVDA-related announcements, including its reported (unconfirmed) acquisition of Hugging Face and confirmed investment in MediaTek. NVIDIA posted significantly better than expected results across most metrics with total revenue of $96bn more than doubling year-over-year and implying accelerating top-line growth for the fourth consecutive quarter. Management characterized that the surge in AI demand was driven by the global infrastructure build-out supported by "an expanding and diverse set of growth opportunities spanning hyperscalers, AI labs, AI natives, enterprises and sovereign customers." Further, NVIDIA discussed expectations for revenue growth of ~70% in FY28 and that this is a supply-constrained outlook, implying growth would be stronger absent these supply-related challenges. We discuss three readthroughs related to the results and mgmt commentary on the call.

Palo Alto Networks: Org NNARR Accel'd; FY27 Org NNARR Beatable; Will Talk More on Path to 40% FCF & $20B ARR in FY28

Three forward-looking points from PANW's 4Q26 result and FY27 guide: (1) we estimate organic NNARR accelerated to 35-40% y/y growth assuming $200M+ in Chronosphere NNARR and $90-100M in CyberArk ARR - looking forward, we think the midpoint of the FY27 guide implies organic NNARR is flat y/y which we think indicates PANW could beat and raise NGS ARR throughout FY27 given the tailwinds here; (2) we wonder if investors will start talking more about the speed at which PANW can get to 40% FCF margin given the stability in annual billings mix, and the path to $20B in NGS ARR in FY30, which is a 20%+ CAGR from here; (3) tech debt is not a term you hear much in cybersecurity, but we wonder if AI can be the "invisible hand" that helps move $1 trillion in tech debt towards modern platforms like PANW - separately, we think Console could be an interesting automation tool that helps PANW continue taking share in SIEM.

CrowdStrike Holdings, Inc: Three Strategic, Product, Financial Takeaways from Fal.Con; Frontier Models are Partners, Guardian Agentic Security, Better FY28 NNARR Guide

Three key takeaways from CrowdStrike's Investor day: (1) the most strategic takeaway in our view was that OpenAI and Anthropic both presented in Fal.Con separately and talked about the need for CrowdStrike and third-party security companies to help fulfill their mission of growing AI adoption – we have heard investor fears of potential competition from the frontier lab companies, which reminded us of the early days of hyperscalers, who ultimately relied on security companies to drive IaaS adoption; (2) from a product standpoint, we thought the three most investable announcements were Guardian, which finds and protects agents at runtime, Safemind, cybersecurity's frontier model, and Agentic Identity Provider, which brings agentic/ just-in-time privilege; and (3) financially, the most incremental point was FY28 NNARR growth of 20% (which translates to ARR base growth of 25%) which takes up our estimates, FCF margin guide of 32.5% is largely inline but assumes higher capex, so our CFO margins go up – we saw the $10B was pulled forward to FY30, but we wonder if this could happen earlier given the strong FY28 guide.

Adobe Inc.: 3Q Web Traffic Should Drive Solid NNARR; We See FY26 ARR Guide Unchanged; Street Needs to Reset FY27 ARR; FY27 is 53 Week Year

Four key points into ADBE's 3Q: (1) we are modelling $400M in 3Q NNARR, which is down q/q because the greater freemium mix, but we think this quarter sets up well because of strong web traffic/app downloads and some lingering pricing benefit, so we wonder if an upside case could be $420M+; (2) we model 4Q26 NNARR of $770M which contemplates a 40/60 split between 3Q/4Q – remember we expect little if any pricing benefit in 4Q (it laps in 3Q), so the 4Q uptick comes from seasonal enterprise strength and changing traffic patterns, which seem strong so far but tough to underwrite; (3) looking at FY27, we are lower than the street's $2.34B in NNARR because if adjusted for ~$480M in Semrush contribution, ~$250M in illustrative pricing benefit, and FY27's 53rd week, Street would be modelling 20%+ y/y growth in underlying NNARR - on top of this, remember a new CEO/CFO may want to set this more conservatively to start; and (4) while we do not have any insight, we wonder if logistically it makes sense for ADBE to announce a new CEO this quarter as we approach FY27 planning and Adobe MAX timing.

SailPoint, Inc.: Could See Moderate Upside to 2Q ARR With Good OKTA Results, but Flat US Fed Activity; Remember Migrations Help ARR, Not Revenue

Three key points into SAIL's 2Q: (1) We model 2Q27 NNARR of ~$57M and ARR growth of ~24% y/y, but could see a potential upside scenario of ~$62M of NNARR based on historical beats and OKTA read-throughs, though note a flattish US Fed bookings quarter versus last year and down from a strong 1Q; (2) for the FY, we model ARR growth ~22% y/y which implies a ~2% y/y decline in NNARR but expect this to go up throughout the year, though remember ARR growth will not translate to the same revenue growth rate as more customers transition from term with more upfront to SaaS which is ratable; (3) looking beyond FY27, we model ARR slightly below the FY29 target of $2.1B and currently view the target as more of an upside scenario - also note SAIL announced the acquisition of Entro Security to expand its Agentic Fabric offering, which we expect could add at least $5-10M in inorganic ARR this year.

Price (03-Sep-2026)	USD 264.43
Price Target	USD 276.00

Why OVERWEIGHT?

Salesforce has expanded beyond Sales Automation to become one of the leading vendors in CRM, one of the largest and fastest-growing enterprise software markets. We would expect continued healthy underlying growth, along with attractive cross-sell opportunities with new products like Integration Cloud and Analytics.

Upside case USD 311.00

The new areas Salesforce has expanded into such as Marketing and Salesforce1 for Mobile, as well as greater enterprise and industry focus, could drive more growth than we currently expect.

Downside case USD 160.00

The new growth initiatives around enterprise strategy and move to new market areas may not pay off, which will lead to a growth slowdown but still relatively high costs.

Upside/Downside scenarios

We are reuploading model data for Salesforce due to a technical issue; there is no change to our estimates.

Guide to the Barclays Fundamental Equity Research Rating System:
Our coverage analysts use a relative rating system in which they rate stocks as Overweight, Equal Weight or Underweight (see definitions below) relative to other companies covered by the analyst or a team of analysts that are deemed to be in the same industry (the "industry coverage universe").

In addition to the stock rating, we provide industry views which rate the outlook for the industry coverage universe as Positive, Neutral or Negative (see definitions below). A rating system using terms such as buy, hold and sell is not the equivalent of our rating system. Investors should carefully read the entire research report including the definitions of all ratings and not infer its contents from ratings alone.

Stock Rating
Overweight - The stock is expected to outperform the unweighted expected total return of the industry coverage universe over a 12-month investment horizon.

Equal Weight - The stock is expected to perform in line with the unweighted expected total return of the industry coverage universe over a 12-month investment horizon.

Underweight - The stock is expected to underperform the unweighted expected total return of the industry coverage universe over a 12-month investment horizon.

Rating Suspended - The rating and target price have been suspended temporarily due to market events that made coverage impracticable or to comply with applicable regulations and/or firm policies in certain circumstances including where the Investment Bank of Barclays Bank PLC is acting in an advisory capacity in a merger or strategic transaction involving the company.

Industry View
Positive - industry coverage universe fundamentals/valuations are improving.

Neutral - industry coverage universe fundamentals/valuations are steady, neither improving nor deteriorating.

Negative - industry coverage universe fundamentals/valuations are deteriorating.

Below is the list of companies that constitute the "industry coverage universe":

N: Salesforce.com Inc. is, or during the past 12 months has been, a non-investment banking client (non-securities related services) of Barclays Bank PLC and/or an affiliate.

Valuation Methodology: Our price target of $276 is based on 16x CY27E EV/FCF and CY27E FCF of $16.634bn

Risks which May Impede the Achievement of the Barclays Research Valuation and Price Target: Salesforce operates in the highly competitive enterprise software market, and larger entrants such as Microsoft, SAP, and Oracle could undermine pricing support over time, making it difficult for Salesforce to achieve its financial objectives. As a high-growth company carrying a relatively high valuation, shares are susceptible to significant multiple pressure during market selloffs.

Valuation Methodology: Our PT of $384 is based on an EV/CY27E FCF multiple of 80x and CY27E FCF of $1.87bn.

Risks which May Impede the Achievement of the Barclays Research Valuation and Price Target: 1) Unlike a subscription revenue model, Snowflake recognizes revenue as customers consume resources. This could create volatility in the P&L as Snowflake has limited visibility into the revenue it can recognize compared to traditional SaaS companies. 2) In addition to the legacy software companies competing with Snowflake, all the major public cloud vendors have competitive solutions. 3) Snowflake is dependent on cloud vendors to run its services and its cost of goods are based on the pricing it gets from AWS, Azure etc. 4) To the upside, faster than expected consumption and new product traction could lead to positive estimate revisions and upside to the current share price.

J: Barclays Bank PLC and/or an affiliate is a liquidity provider and/or trades regularly in the securities by Sprinklr, Inc. and/or in any related derivatives.

Valuation Methodology: Our price target of $6 is based on ~8x CY27E FCF of ~$135mn.

Risks which May Impede the Achievement of the Barclays Research Valuation and Price Target: Sprinklr operates in a new and emerging market. As such, the major risk for the business is customer understanding and adoption. If enterprises do not see CXM as a pressing need, that could put pressure on the ability for Sprinklr to attract new customers and grow existing ones. Additionally, although the platform is fully compliant now, changes in the regulation of consumer data privacy could create a challenge for the business. Most recently, GenAI has emerged as a risk for the business, with less prioritization of spend in the CXM space.

This material, where distributed to persons in Australia, is produced or provided by Barclays Bank PLC.

This communication is directed at persons who are a "Wholesale Client" as defined by the Australian Corporations Act 2001.

Please note that the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC) has provided certain exemptions to Barclays Bank PLC (BBPLC) under paragraph 911A(2)(l) of the Corporations Act 2001 from the requirement to hold an Australian financial services licence (AFSL) in respect of financial services provided to Australian Wholesale Clients, on the basis that BBPLC is authorised by the Prudential Regulation Authority of the United Kingdom (PRA) and regulated by the Financial Conduct Authority (FCA) of the United Kingdom and the PRA under United Kingdom laws. The United Kingdom has laws which differ from Australian laws. To the extent that this communication involves the provision of financial services by BBPLC to Australian Wholesale Clients, BBPLC relies on the relevant exemption from the requirement to hold an AFSL. Accordingly, BBPLC does not hold an AFSL.

This communication may be distributed to you by either: (i) Barclays Bank PLC directly, (ii) Barrenjoey Markets Pty Limited (ACN 636 976 059, "Barrenjoey"), the holder of Australian Financial Services Licence (AFSL) 521800, a non-affiliated third party distributor, where clearly identified to you by Barrenjoey. Barrenjoey is not an agent of Barclays Bank PLC or (iii) such other non-affiliated third-party distributor(s) as may be clearly identified to you. Such non-affiliated third-party distributor(s) are not agents of Barclays Bank PLC.

Sustainable Investing Related Research: There is currently no globally accepted framework or definition (legal, regulatory or otherwise) of, nor market consensus as to what constitutes a 'sustainable', 'ESG', 'green', 'climate-friendly' or an equivalent company, investment, strategy or consideration or what precise attributes are required to be eligible to be categorised by such terms. This means there are different ways to evaluate a company or an investment and so different values may be placed on certain sustainability credentials as well as adverse ESG-related impacts of companies and ESG controversies. The evolving nature of sustainable investing considerations, models and methodologies means it can be challenging to definitively and universally classify a company or investment under a sustainable investing label and there may be areas where such companies and investments could improve or where adverse ESG-related impacts or ESG controversies exist. The evolving nature of sustainable finance related regulations and the development of jurisdiction-specific regulatory criteria also means that there is likely to be a degree of divergence as to the interpretation of such terms in the market. We expect industry guidance, market practice, and regulations in this field to continue to evolve.

Any information, data, image, or other content including from a third party source contained, referred to herein or used for whatsoever purpose by Barclays or a third party ("Information"), in relation to any actual or potential 'ESG', 'sustainable' or equivalent objective, issue, factor or consideration is not intended to be relied upon for ESG or sustainability classification, regulatory regime or industry initiative purposes ("ESG Regimes"), unless otherwise stated. Nothing in these materials, including any images included therein, is intended to convey, suggest or indicate that Barclays considers or represents any product, service, person or body mentioned in these materials as meeting or qualifying for any ESG or sustainability classification, label or similar standards that may exist under ESG Regimes. Barclays has not conducted any assessment of compliance with ESG Regimes. Parties are reminded to make their own assessments for these purposes.
